

PRESENTACIÓN ISSUE 3

The managing board of the Journal of Supranational Policies of Education is very proud to present its third issue. The punctual publication of this annual journal is the proof that this is a solid project, a confirmation of our great enthusiasm, generous commitment and hard work.

The monographic section focuses on the subject “Womens’ education: Guidelines in Supranational Education Policies” and it has been coordinated thanks to the unlimited support offered by Dr. María Jesús Martínez Usarralde , specialist in Comparative Education, International Education and Development Cooperation. Dr. Martinez lectures at the Department of Comparative Education and Education History of the Philosophy and Education Sciences Faculty of the University of Valencia.

Her large experience researching this monograph’s subject and the strong international vocation of her academic career have enabled us to achieve, in our humble opinion, high quality levels in this issue. The various contributions offer a complete set of points of view, confronting genre in education from both the academic and political side, providing an analysis at comparative and supranational levels. For all of these reasons, we are truly grateful and, specifically, for the professionalism accomplished during the coordination of the monograph and the cooperative and resolute attitude offered at all times.

With this issue, we, the Recognized Research Group on Supranational Education Policies of the Universidad Autonoma de Madrid, humbly hope to offer a new valuable contribution, generating scientific and academic knowledge in our field of interest.

We want to pay a specific tribute to Juan Antonio Nuñez, former Editor-in-Chief of JoSPoE, who was in charge from its very beginning of the enormous and demanding task of launching the journal. Due to his work, this publishing project has been possible and already has a three years history.

Rocio Garrido, new Editor-in-Chief, has taken over the duties together with Maria Matarranz, Publishing Assistant. They both are the driving forces of the current issue and have been coordinated by the Assistant Director of the journal, Hector Monarca. The three Directors of JoSPoE want to make use of these lines to thank all of them for their effort and hard work, done without remuneration.

We want to finish this presentation acknowledging the work of the members of the Editorial Board, the International Scientific Committee and, specifically, the commitment of all the assessors that have undertaken the evaluation of the texts provided by the authors. Without their assistance, the journal would not be here now ready for the reader's eyes.
